Easter.

Easter, of all holidays, is the most significant; for it symbolizes the widespread, nay almost universal belief in the immortality of the soul—the belief which, most of all, makes life valuable; the hope which helps men forward from day to day, and cheers them as they toil on the monotonous plane of routine and materialism. For always before their eyes gleams the rosy-tipped peak which tells of purer heights, and which shines always with the radiance of a sun entirely submerged from the mortal view. At Easter time the serious and thoughtful think of the glorious promise of the life to come, made certain through the Resurrection. Nature is alive with the glad tidings of life revived. After slumbering for months under frost and snow, with the approach of the gentle spring there is a great quickening. To nature's analogy add the truth of revelation, and man's hope for life beyond is assured.

It has been well said that man's longing for immortality is inherent. Men are born into this life with that fond anticipation. This heart-throbbing for life beyond impelled the giants of philosophy of ancient times to speak and write on the subject. It inspired Socrates in his noble work among the Athenian youths, and gave courage to Cicero in the Roman forum. And what was regarded by them as only a possibility was later "made manifest by the appearance of our Savior Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." The Christian's ideal of immortality, it should be noted, was that of prolonged existence upon an immeasurably elevated plane.

The wonderful truth of immortality, impressed at Easter, gives the highest possible motive for faithful Christian life and service. Impelled by the fact of immortality, wise men live as they ought to live, for life goes on forever and the future is the harvest of the present. They realize that the eternal years of God belong to truth, justice and righteousness. The light of immortality shines on and unravels all the apparently hopeless entanglements of earth and time. It is worth while to live, to fight, to labor, to wait and endure, for the end is sure. Men can struggle, toil and sacrifice in hope and patience, for they realize that life goes on forever, in new fullness, with new earnestness and power.

It is well that once a year the symbolism of Easter brings home anew the lesson that men, if they will, may overleap the barriers that their own errors and weaknesses have created, and emerge into a fuller and higher life, crowned with the assurance of immortality.

GARDENS IN WOLFE COUNTY.

A Present Help in All Hog-and-Hominy Troubles and a Great Aid to Good Living.

To the Editor of THE HAZEL GREEN HERALD—Every now and then I see in THE HERALD that some thoughtful subscriber has remembered the editor and his better 15-16 with a helpin' of garden sass and I know that there must be gardens in Wolfe county. But how many are there? How many farmers all over the county have good gardens? How many more eat hog and hominy than toothsome and healthful garden sass? I am particularly interested in the mountain people being educated in what to eat rather than what to read and I am trying to inculcate the doctrine of garden sass as against hog and hominy.

It may be that every farmer and householder in the town and country has just the kind of garden he ought to have, and if this be so, I hasten to apologize and admit that I need education myself. But I do not believe, from what I know of mountain people, that one in ten has such a garden as he could have if he worked the ground a little. Hog and hominy comes a good deal easier, and the average mountaineer is taking things just as easy as he can, more the shame to him.

I shall not go into any argument in favor of gardens and what they will produce to the betterment of the human digestion and the better health of the individual, but I would like to know through THE HERALD what proportion of the people of Wolfe county have good gardens.

I remember on one occasion visiting the famous Hazel Green Fair, but I do not recall that the vegetable exhibit was anything to boast of. I also remember very distinctly that at Aunt Lou Day's tavern I got as fine eating as I ever stuck a tooth into in the mountains, but it was not vegetable eating. I am sure there was not a bite of salad anywhere on that generous board, and yet a salad is one of the simplest and most healthful combinations that a stomach can get outside of. By the way, how many people in Hazel Green and Wolfe county have salad with their dinner? I'll bet most of them think a salad is some mysterious and complicated dish that nobody short of a ten thousand dollar cook can put up, and yet it is so simple that any woman in Wolfe county could learn how to make a good one in ten minutes, even if she had never seen one in her life. But as I said before I am not arguing for gardens. How many are there in Wolfe county—good ones, I mean.

Yours, W. J. LAMPTON.
New York City, March 19th.

NOTICE

To All Overseers of the Public Roads in Wolfe County.

I hereby call your attention to your duties in regard to your section of roads as the time of year has come to have your road put in repair. I do not want to take a rule against you, but unless you put your road in repair by the April term of the Wolfe County court a rule will be taken against you and a fine will be certainly entered against all who fail to have their section of road in repair at that term of court. So you better get a move on yourself.

W. B. DUFF, Judge W. C.

A graduate of a Boston school of journalism thus described the manner in which a goat butted a boy out of the yard: The capra agagrus hurled the previous end of his anatomy against the boy's afterwards with an earnestness and velocity which, backed by the ponderosity of the capra agagrus's avoirdupois, imparted a momentum that was not relaxed until he had landed on terra firma beyond the pale of the capra agagrus's jurisdiction.

When you find your home paper taking no interest in you or your success, says the Baltic (Ohio) American, when you find it keeping aggravatingly silent when you think the editor should be tearing his linen in your behalf, do not work yourself into a fever of anxiety as to the cause; just ask yourself wherein have you placed the paper and its editor under obligations to use space and energy for you.

KENTUCKY KERNELS

Carefully Collated and Concisely Chronicled.

Harry W. Lockridge, the newly appointed postmaster at Mt. Sterling, is said to be the youngest presidential postmaster in Kentucky.

Crit Charles, a prominent farmer of Pike county, committed suicide by cutting his throat and plunging head first into a well. Ill health the cause.

While carelessly handling a revolver, Virgil Slaughter, aged 20 years, of Lawrenceburg, accidentally shot himself, the wound proving fatal next day.

Goalder Johnson, of Fulton county, is probably the youngest sheriff in Kentucky having barely passed the legal age of 24 years when sworn in last January.

At Beaver Creek, in Floyd county, Joe Allen, who was drinking, shot and severely wounded Dr. Walker Stambaugh in the shoulder. The doctor retaliated by shooting Allen dead.

A set of handmade harness, which eight years ago were bought for $20 and had been in constant use since, were recently sold for $30 at a public sale in one of the bluegrass counties.

The record price for hogs was paid at Henderson last Thursday when Thomas Bassett sold forty hogs, averaging 200 pounds, at 13 1-12 cents a pound to a local butcher. The total amounted to $1,030.

Pauline Roark, the ten year-old girl who was recently attacked by a negro brute while alone in her mother's kitchen in Louisville, identified Louis Williams as her assailant. The girl is in a serious condition.

Willard L. Bentley, a graduate in medicine, and son of a well known broker in Louisville, was found dead in his room in the family residence with a bullet hole in the back of his skull and another between his eyes.

The highest price for dark tobacco ever paid on the loose floor in Kentucky was reached last week when $15.50 per 100 was given at Hopkinsville for a Christian county crop. It was purchased for the Bremen, Germany, market.

Additional ground has been purchased by the W. C. T. U. people at Hindman to rebuild the school building recently destroyed by fire. Besides the main school building, a girl's dormitory, and an industrial hall will be erected. The promoters will expend about $40,000.

Judge J. P. Gregory, of the Louisville Criminal court, discovered a push button on the outside of a window of the grand jury room. "Pressing the button" a negro waiter from an adjoining saloon appeared and asked the judge what he would take. The window is locked now and the jurors go out to imbibe.

There is one man in Fleming county who believes in living close to home. His name is Thomas Field, who is now 65 years old and has lived near Ewing all his life. He has never been to Flemingsburg, never rode on a railroad train, never been in a court room, sued or been sued. He is a man of average intelligence.

Joseph Allen was shot from ambush as he rode down a bridge path near Presburg last Friday, three bullets taking effect. All-n went to a neighbor's house and died there, after stating he had been shot by John Gunnels and Walker Stumbo. Both these men surrendered and were released later on $5,000 bonds each.

Near Bourne, Garrard county, Creedmore Turner and Luther Ray engaged in a pistol duel, and when the smoke cleared away Turner was dead and Ray was mortally wounded. The men were driving along the road, met and began firing at each other. The cause is not known, but is thought to be an old grudge. Turner's daughter sat in the buggy with her father, but escaped injury.

J. M. McDaniel, a Beattyville lawyer, is inaugurating a movement for the preservation of thousands of acres of land in Eastern Kentucky, which, he says, will in time become a desert waste unless it is properly cultivated. It is mountainous land, from which the timber has been cut, and which is gradually washing away. He is urging the state board of agriculture to encourage the planting of vineyards on some of this land and to convert other portions of it to the poultry business.

BURNS ELAM, Agent.
Box 31 Hazel Green, Ky.

As long as a man agrees with you, you think him a good fellow. When he antagonizes your ideas and doctrines, you don't like him so well. As long as the farmer went along plowing, hoeing and harvesting, and let the professional politician run the politics, and the monopolies run the business, nobody called him a crank or an ignoramus. But when he took a hand in the politics and began to question the right of others to rob him, the dogs of war were let loose on him.

A Rare Opportunity.

I offer for sale my residence, consisting of seven-room cottage, good lot and garden, and outbuildings. One of the most desirable locations in Hazel Green. Also my blacksmith and general repair shop, which is superior to anything of the kind in the country, being furnished with a complete outfit of tools and stock of materials and supplies; also equipped with power and machinery. Will sell all together or separately. For further particulars call on or address, JOHN H. ROSE, March 11. Hazel Green, Ky.
